Chairman's Message

Dear Residents,

My warmest wishes to all residents of Marsiling-Yew Tee GRC!

Since the last time I reached out to you through "MY Kampung", a lot has changed. I'm sure many residents are relieved that life is slowly returning back to normal with the easing of COVID restrictions.

As we resume group activities, our community partners have started organising face-to-face meetings at void decks as this is an important part of community building.

There will be more activities in the public, especially during festive gatherings, so that people can get to know their neighbours better. You are most welcome to join our local resident groups and make a difference in our neighbourhood.

We want to hear your feedback on estate developments because we want to make Marsiling-Yew Tee Town better.

Your voice will create new opportunities for everyone to come forward and take pride in how our homes and community should look like.

Also, we have enhanced our social media and digital channels so your ideas and feedback can reach us in a timely manner.

Please stay connected with us via our social media platforms where you will find the latest happenings in Marsiling-Yew Tee Town. I hope to see you around soon!

Yours Sincerely,
Mr Alex Yam
Chairman

United Through Food

What does the hawker culture mean to each of the 4 Elected Members?

Having heard from Mr Lawrence Wong and Ms Hany Soh, MPs for Marsiling-Yew Tee GRC (Limbang) & (Woodgrove), in the previous issue, Mr Alex Yam and Mr Zaqy Mohamad, MPs for Marsiling-Yew Tee GRC (Yew Tee) & (Marsiling) give this question some food for thought.

During the Japanese occupation of Singapore when food was scarce, sweet potatoes were the staple diet of many families because it was easily harvested in our tropical climate. From porridge to stir-fry, people of different races & religions back then found many ways to use the humble tuber to keep stomachs full.

Simple Food, Great Joy

One such dish is the sambal sweet potato leaves, a personal favourite of Mr Alex Yam who finds comfort in what was a “poor man’s dish” of the past. Within Yew Tee, his favourite version can be found at Zone 12 Residents’ Committee’s Broadway coffee shop’s tze char stall. “A simple plate of sambal sweet potato leaves always hits the spot,” he says, while also lauding their sam lou hor fun, claypot chicken, and curry fish head.

He further shares how their food is infused with wok hei (meaning ‘breath of the wok’) and commends their fresh ingredients and affordability.

Where affordable food and good company meet: Mr Alex Yam interacts with residents at a food court

“Hawkers have always priced their dishes to cater specifically to residents staying in the heartlands,” he adds. “It is now more important than ever to show our support. By supporting them, we ensure that prices remain reasonably low and their ongoing presence is a form of convenience.”

A Helping Hand

As Mayor for the North West Community Development Council (CDC) and Chairman of Marsiling-Yew Tee Town Council (MYTTC), he has helped lead initiatives to support our hawkers and ensure prices remain affordable for the masses. Specifically, the CDC has been engaging hawkers and heartland merchants to participate in the CDC vouchers scheme. MYTTC has also extended Service & Conservancy Charges support to help hawkers and market stall holders cope.

The Singapore hawker culture reminds Mr Yam of the old kampong days, and believes that uplifting our hawkers is crucial in strengthening our community spirit of gotong royong & unity. “Our hawker culture also embodies our symbolic acceptance of race and religion where a myriad of food options is available for residents!”

Marsiling: Food Calls!

Mr Zaqy Mohamad shares on Marsiling’s hawker culture and how it is central to the town’s identity.

What is the Marsiling hawker culture? To some, it may be the unique fusion of flavours and cuisines influenced by the town’s close proximity to Johor Bahru (JB). To others, it could be how the town seems to boast many hidden gems despite its relative remoteness — food that people all over Singapore would gladly make the trip up north for.

So it’s no wonder Mr Zaqy Mohamad, MP for Marsiling-Yew Tee GRC (Marsiling) finds it difficult to name a regular haunt when asked which stalls he usually patronises. “Marsiling is fortunate to have so many good makan stalls,” he says, and cites the Marsiling Mall Hawker Centre as an example. The Marsiling Mall Hawker Centre houses many popular hawker stalls that once operated from the Old Woodlands Town Centre Hawker Centre, which closed after 37 years in 2017 to make way for the extension of the Woodlands Checkpoint.

Marsiling’s Unique Position

Located close to the causeway, Marsiling’s role as a transition town between Singapore and Malaysia benefited both businesses and travellers who frequently commuted between the two lands. Many eateries were hotspots for locals coming back after a day-trip from JB, or for foreign workers fuelling up before work or leaving in the evening. Since COVID-19 began, the scene has quietened down but residents and merchants have hope that the easing of travel restrictions will revive Marsiling into the bustling hub it was before.

“The pandemic has not been kind to our hawkers. Many faced restrictions, some suffered, many had operated here for years, and safe management measures had reduced easy access to great, affordable food,” shares Mr Zaqy. “This is why it’s more important than ever to show our support to our hawkers.”

With so many great eats around, where does one start? Mr Zaqy suggests organising a food trail, perhaps inspired by fellow MP Ms Hany Soh who has spearheaded something similar for Woodgrove division. He hopes such a project can not only support the hawkers, but enhance the identity of Marsiling which is so closely connected to food.

“Without Marsiling’s hawker culture, Marsiling would be a very different home to all of us because food gives character to the neighbourhood, and brings flavour, literally, to our community.”

Up & About MYT – Neighbourhood Updates

Marsiling-Yew Tee Town is constantly being improved to meet the needs of residents. With your feedback, we aspire to turn our home into one that is accessible, comfortable, and inclusive for all. Some exciting upgrading works are taking place within our town – here's what you can expect!

1 Rejuvenation of Fuchun Neighbourhood In Woodgrove

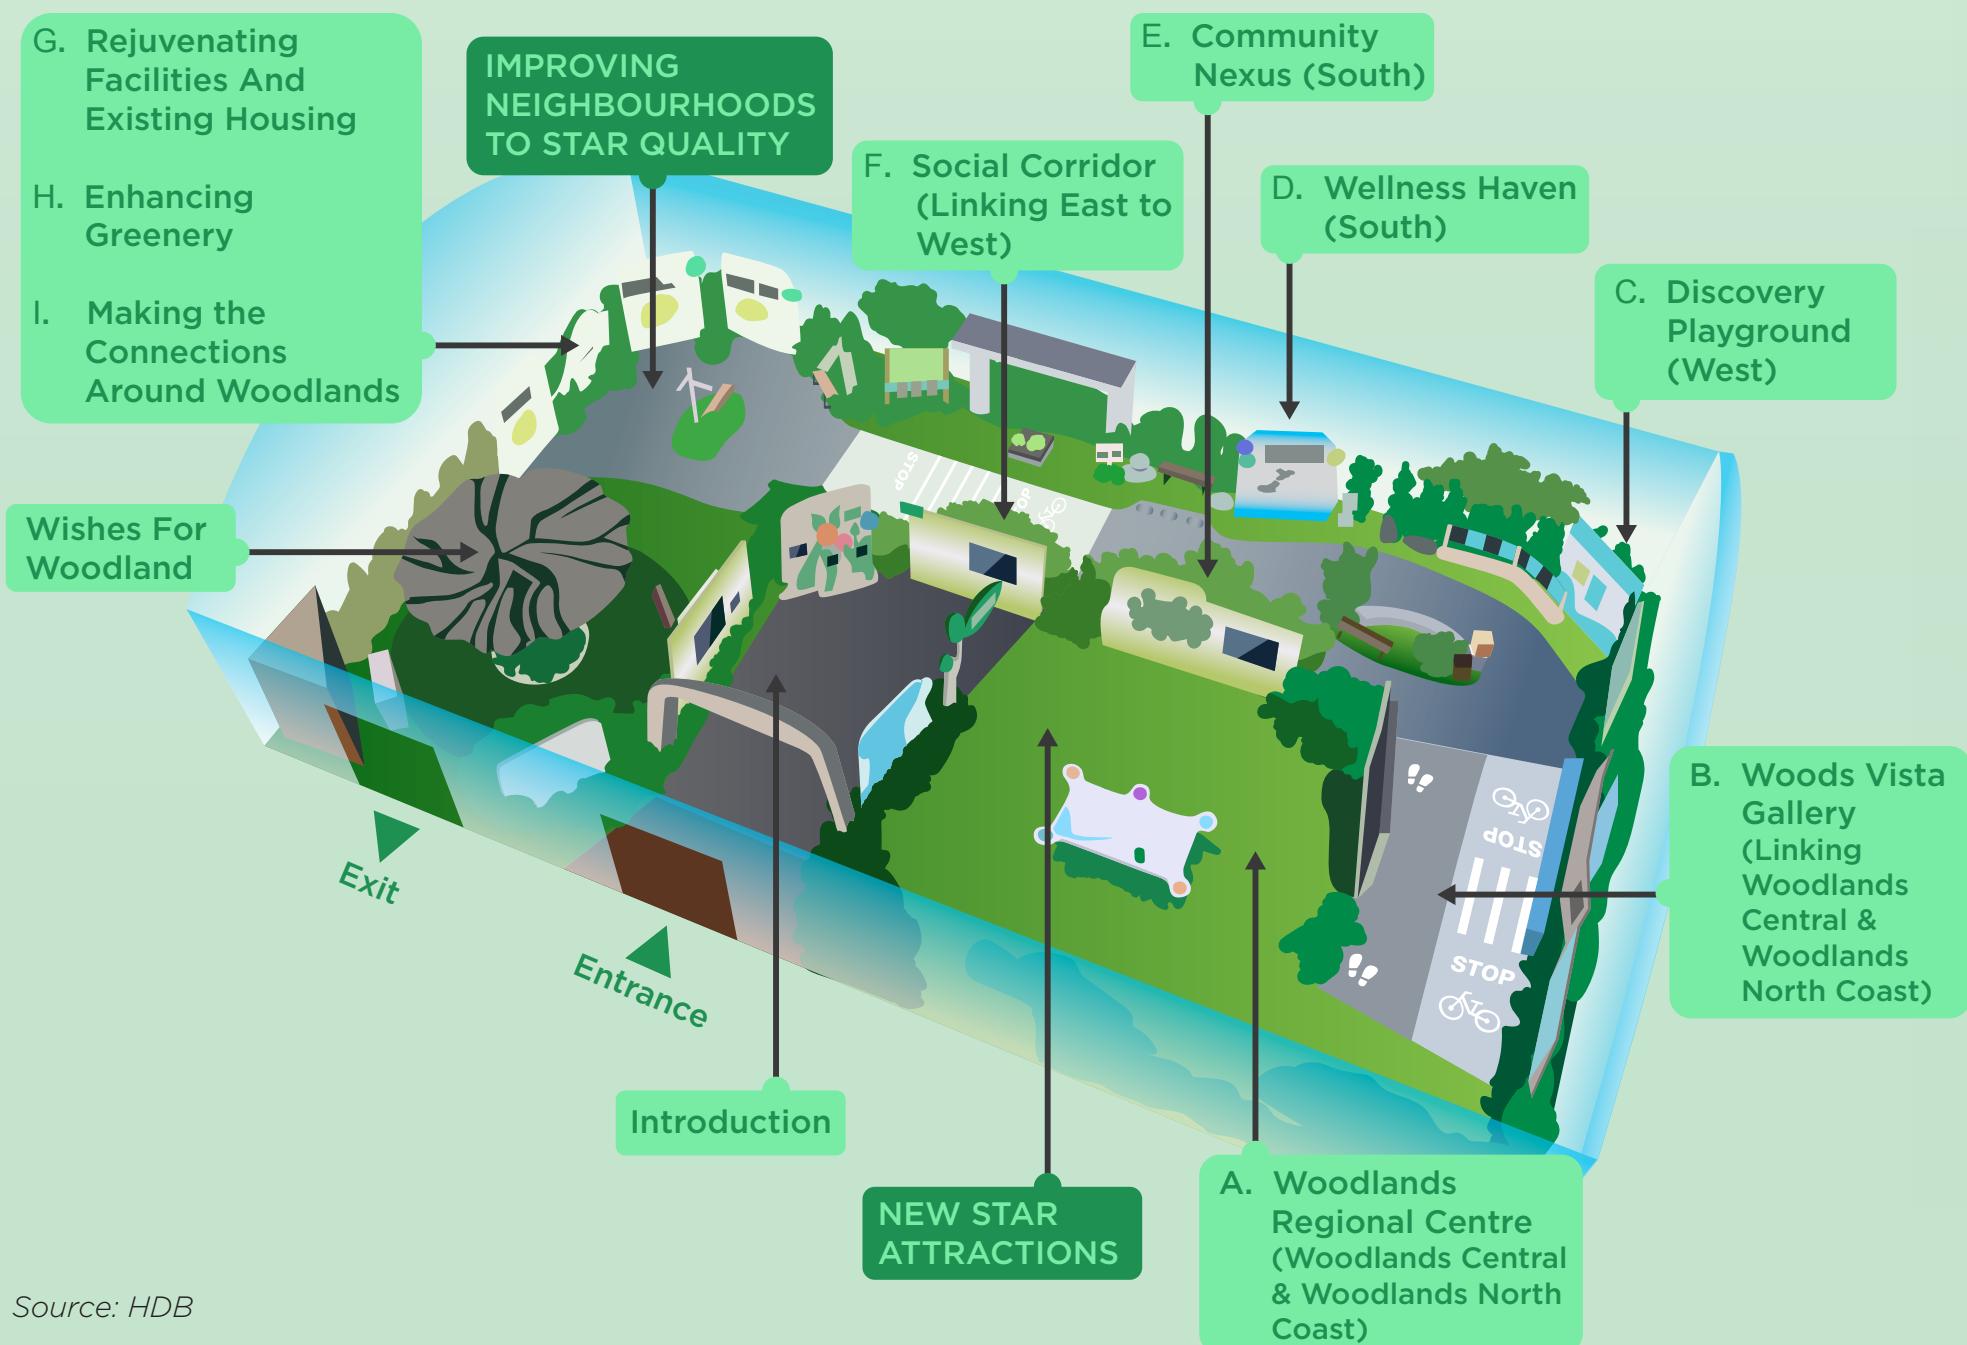

One of the key upgrades in Marsiling-Yew Tee town is the rejuvenation of Fuchun Neighbourhood Centre (Woodgrove) under HDB's Remaking Our Heartland plan.

Residents can look forward to more community spaces with improved accessibility ramps and a wellness boulevards. A ramp in the vicinity of Sheng Siong Supermarket. A wider pathway at the nearby pedestrian mall. Seating benches for residents, catering to the needs of the elderly. A fitness corner & community garden at the Wellness Boulevard and a new pathway into the new fitness corner to improve accessibility from the Orange Valley Nursing Home.

Our Goal:

To deliver on a series of urban elements promoting active lifestyle and wellness for the residents.

The project is expected to commence by end-2022 and will take about 18 to 24 months to complete.

2 Revamping Marsiling Lane Hawker Centre & Wet Market

The Marsiling Lane Hawker Centre & Wet Market has been the go-to place for good food and fresh produce since it was built in 1975. Last upgraded in 2009, it will be rejuvenated under HDB's Remaking Our Heartland initiative to meet your dining and marketing needs better. From revitalised walkways to renewed common areas, merchants and residents can look forward a slew of upgrades that play on the distinct characteristics of Marsiling Town. Marsiling Court, the neighbourhood centre that houses the hawker centre and wet market, will also see a refreshed entryway and more spaces for community activities.

3 The Green Spine

Walking or cycling from home to amenities like existing public transport nodes, shopping malls, and schools is set to become even more convenient with the development of the “Green Spine”, a 2km-long recreational space that spans the entire viaduct below Yew Tee MRT Station towards the end of Limbang Park.

Covered linkways will bridge residential estates flanking the viaduct to the Green Spine, enhancing last-mile connectivity for Limbang and Yew Tee residents travelling within and beyond the Town.

Furthermore, the Green Spine will feature a host of leisure, educational, and play facilities to encourage healthy living and support community bonding. Look forward to a vibrant community space with many engaging activities for families to participate in, as well as the organising of festivities which we can celebrate together as one.

4 Improving Connectivity in Marsiling

A new lift, a skybridge, and more sheltered linkways. These are some of the upcoming developments in Marsiling that will make getting from place to place a breeze!

✓ Marsiling Drive

- 1 Direct connection from Blk 1 to 7, towards Marsiling Market and Hawker Centre
- 2 Construction of new lift to enable residents from Blk 1 to get to Level 1 and access amenities like Sian Chay Medical Institution
- 3 New skybridge from Blk 1 to Marsiling Drive, connecting to a sheltered linkway to Blk 7A

Delivering key benefits on both sides of Woodlands Street 13

✓ Marsiling Greenview & Woodlands St 13

- 4 New linkway enables residents to cross over to Woodlands St 13 through Blk 154 and 182, allowing access a major 24-hour supermarket, and many food & beverage and retail outlets in the surrounding areas.

- 5 New sheltered route to link Blk 183C to 178. Residents from Blk 183C and neighbouring Blks 182 to 185 will be able to access coffee shops and retail outlets at Blks 167 and 169, Marsiling Mall, and Marsiling MRT station with ease.

- 6 A high covered linkway at Zone 2 RN Blk 18 to Blk 19 (Market & Hawker centre) creating two-way access and benefits. The construction of this new linkway across serves to give sheltered access for residents and all visitors who intend to visit Marsiling Lane Market & Hawker Centre by bus.

A Community Connected and Engaged

In Marsiling-Yew Tee GRC, the Town Council and other committees and agencies work with residents to create a social fabric and ensures that no one is left behind. Such community engagements and resident involvement are important on many levels — Afterall, it is the people that make the community. These ties that bind are especially important now when the pandemic restrictions have started easing.

Strengthening the MYT Fabric

Over the past two years, events and activities were pursued differently. Increased reliance on technology such as social media and video conferencing applications became part of the new norm.

This has not been easy, especially in estates with a higher concentration of less IT-savvy residents. Despite all of these, the Town Council and community partners have also adapted to better manage community engagement. The Town Council has also regularly updated residents of the happenings and developments around the town through social media outlets and its newsletter.

Seniors can also look forward to basic IT workshops, which can help them become more comfortable using such tools and better participate in future activities.

“Dialogue sessions like ‘Makan Kakis’ may be short but they’re meaningful. It enables us to share with residents what is coming up. What is important for us is forward planning. One outcome for residents is that they know they have a part to play in the many developments we are undertaking and that they are consulted.”

- Mr Zaqy Mohamad, Senior Minister of State for Defence & Manpower and MP for Marsiling-Yew Tee GRC (Marsiling)

“The interlinked network initiative is particularly effective in promoting quick communication between the Residents’ Committee, Town Council, and other parties involved.”

-Ms Jenny Chen,
Chairman of Yew Tee Zone 8
Residents’ Committee

Feedback on Estate Matters and Improvement

In addition to these online communication channels, more traditional forms of engagement such as house visits and dialogue sessions have resumed with the easing of the COVID-19 restrictions.

Resumption of physical events more importantly allows for residents who require assistance to have a channel to share their voice. Meet-the-People’s sessions also allow residents to meet the advisors to seek the assistance that they need. Seniors can turn to the familiar Residents’ Committee and Network members or head down to their nearby offices directly.

At the recent ‘Makan Kakis’ Dialogue at Marsiling, Senior Minister of State for Defence & Manpower and MP for Marsiling-Yew Tee GRC (Marsiling) pointed out the importance of having “a good sense of what is needed on the ground.”

Amenities and facilities in the town should be designed with the residents in mind, and such platforms allow residents to comment on the future of our community.

To further facilitate two-way communication, an interlinked solid network between the Town Council, other agencies, and Residents’ Committees and Networks has been set up. Effective communications ensured prompt action. New cooperation ensures structured engagement compared to previous more ad-hoc responses. These additional initiatives encourage stepping up and greater ownership of the estate and community matters.

Your Involvement Matters

Everyone plays an important part in the fabric that makes up Marsiling-Yew Tee. Good interpersonal relations is vital to the functioning of the community. Active involvement exists in many different forms. Being gracious to one another, using neighbourhood amenities with care, and keeping your estate clean are ways all can play a part.

Involvement for lifestyle wellness

Despite the reduction in interactions due to the pandemic, Residents' Committees have worked hard to organise virtual and in-person events to engage residents. These events cover different topics, such as mental well-being and in-person digital workshops and terrarium workshops. Interest groups and outdoor events such as weekly walkabout with Tai Chi are also making a comeback.

With the easing of the safe distancing measures, residents can look forward to more exciting activities by the various committees. For those who would like to take the lead in engaging other residents in the community, they can join the Residents' Committee or Network of their local area.

Involvement for the community & the future

Just as importantly, residents' involvement through feedback gathering events is vital to shaping a resident-centric community.

Mr Liew Wei Keong, Chairman of Marsiling Zone 2 Residents' Network, was happy to see the encouraging turnout for the recent Makan Kakis dialogue session. For the past two years, there have been little chance for grassroots leaders and volunteers to interact with the residents.

Events such as the Marsiling Makan Kakis dialogue session allow estate and conservancy issues to be brought up and resolved more efficiently. They also get residents involved in the future plans for the estate such as the new Community Centre, and enables the Town Council to better serve the community by having those feedback incorporated into future plans.

“We are still very much here always, our office is here for all you residents ... If you got any issues, please bring it to our attention either through Facebook, ... or by going down the RC and letting us know what kind of concerns that you all have. Because we are here to help them in anyway, serve them in any way possible we can.”

- Mr R. Manoharan,
Chairman of Limbang View
Residents' Committee

Residents' Voices

“I hope to see more family-centered sporting activities so we can spend more time together. Estate wise, I think we're definitely one of the cleaner neighbourhoods in Singapore. The monthly block washes are always carried out as planned, and the cleaners are friendly and would sometimes go out of their way to help residents out.

-Adam,
resident of Blk 525
Choa Chu Kang St 51

“As my husband is wheelchair-bound, we have difficulties disposing of bulky items. MYTTC is usually quick to arrange for help when we need it. The estate is also well-designed to cater to those in wheelchairs. My husband has no problems getting around. The surroundings are clean thanks to our hardworking cleaners and the estate is well-fitted with amenities.

-Mrs Song, resident of Blk 675 Choa Chu Kang Crescent on her husband, Mr Song Yong Kiong (picture above)

“Although there is always room for improvement in the areas of cleanliness, I am contented with the surroundings and the amenities.

Ears on the Ground

Grassroots volunteers take the lead on community engagement

► Woodgrove

Mr Kng Beng Kee staying at Block 429, Woodlands Street 41, has been a resident of the Woodgrove division for about twenty years, paying witness to the shifts and changes in the estate.

Seeing significant improvements in the estate is the most rewarding aspect for Mr Kng. About three years ago, the Neighbourhood Renewal Programme brought about various improvements to the estate while taking in the comments and wishes of the residents and including them in the upgrades. Some of these changes include a jogging track and the upgraded covered barbecue pits.

Re-energising the Community

The bonding and participation rate of the residents with the Residents' Committees have also improved over time, which is especially valuable during this pandemic. Though there had been less interaction between neighbours due to measures in place during the pandemic, he is happy to note that their Residents' Committees organised virtual events to engage residents. These events covered different areas, such as mental well-being and e-Town Hall meetings, where residents gave feedback on estate issues.

"I like to see residents coming together to enjoy the facilities and bonding over shared interests. The estate has improved tremendously; these improvements are actually contributed by the residents. I encourage residents to give constructive feedback to the Residents' Committee for the benefit of the communities."

-Mr Kng Beng Kee, Chairman of Woodgrove RC Zone 9

► Yew Tee

In the six years that Ms Jenny Chen has been the Chairman of Yew Tee Zone 8 Residents' Committee, she has been enthusiastic. Community engagement and problem-solving have always been the most rewarding parts of being a grassroots leader for her.

A Case to Remember

When asked about the most memorable case through her six years, Ms Chen recounts the case where her team had to mediate between two neighbours staying directly above the other. The two units were displeased with each other over the issue of the noise created and the use of a bamboo pole to hit onto surfaces, further creating noise nuisance. Wanting to defuse the situation, the members went to the units to mediate and talk to them about tolerance and understanding for each other.

A Lifelong Commitment

Devoted to helping residents solve their problems, even when she steps down and someone else takes over, Ms Chen says she will still be assisting. This is part of her zone, her duty; she wants to see the improvements and the place getting better.

► Limbang

The part you can play for the community is not limited by the position held, shares Mr R. Manoharan, Chairman of Limbang View Residents' Committee. Being involved in the Limbang division for seventeen years, Mr Manoharan knows a strong system is in place for anyone who hopes to make a difference. For him and his fellow volunteers, there is nothing more important than ensuring feedback by residents are quickly acted on.

Enhancing Two-Way Communication

Thankfully with newer methods of communication available such as Facebook messaging, community engagement has never been more efficient. Another point of contact is the Residents'

Committee Manager, stationed in the Residents' Committee.

Any reports made to MYTTC regarding lift issues are looked into and solved within an hour, which Mr Manoharan finds very satisfactory.

Still Here For You

Mr R. Manoharan seeks his fellow residents' patience when all these physical activities cannot occur. He hopes that they will support the available events and workshops. The Residents' Committee is still very much here. If there are any issues, bring them to their attention, either through Facebook or in person.

MYT Residents Celebrate Hari Raya!

Residents send in some of their favourite Hari Raya snaps, and share what being able to personally interact with their family members & friends during this joyous occasion mean to them.

Selamat Hari 2022 Kepada Semua Keluarga
from the Sahremi Family (Woodlands Street 13)

Our Thoughts:

The last time I had my full force family gathering for Hari Raya was before the Covid pandemic started. For the past 2 years, our family did not get to celebrate Hari Raya and there were moments of we were not being able to meet our parents ... this hurt the most ... The impact is real and the struggle is hard.

Covid left a life lesson to me and my family. We learn and realized to treasure and cherish your loved ones as tomorrow is never promised to anyone. Aside from the above we get to dress up with our traditional attire, getting so motivated in cleaning the house, to eat Hari Raya dishes and having a spread of cookies and cakes on the table...all in a Family. The atmosphere itself on Hari Raya is so much different now and I hope that this continues as the way it is forever."

"Covid left a life lesson to me and my family. We learn and realized to treasure and cherish your loved ones as tomorrow is never promised to anyone."

Wishing Families Selamat Hari Raya Aidilfitri
from the Family of Hairul & Rohayu (Choa Chu Kang Street 53)

Our Thoughts:

Extremely happy to be celebrating Hari Raya this year with the whole family ... to see everyone gather together this year, is such a blessing. Family gathering, seeking apologies, munch Hari Raya food together and most importantly, taking family photos!

Extremely happy to be celebrating Hari Raya this year with the whole family ... to see everyone gather together this year, is such a blessing.

Tackling Dementia – Some Easy Steps

Dementia is on the rise in Singapore. The more you become aware of it, the more you can contribute to creating a dementia-inclusive society.

Dementia is a reality in Singapore.

The occurrence of dementia goes beyond oneself. It not only impacts the daily lives of persons living with it but also carers who may have to sacrifice their careers, in whole or in part, to care for their loved ones.

Although factors such as genes, gender, race, and age are not within control, there are things that can be done to reduce the risk of developing dementia.

Individuals can make lifestyle changes to reduce their risk of developing dementia, and systemic societal changes can be made to reduce the incidence of dementia in a community.

There are 12 main factors which increase the risk of dementia. Changing the relevant health behaviours that prevent these health conditions may thus reduce the risk of many health issues simultaneously, leading to both better overall wellbeing and a reduced risk of developing dementia.

Physical inactivity

Exercise is important in preventing vascular dementia. Joining sports interest groups at your nearest CC or RC are a good option.

Air Pollution

Avoid polluted areas, or wear a mask to prevent the inhalation of pollutants.

Smoking

Smokers have a 45% higher risk of developing dementia than non-smokers.

Head Injury

Exercise precaution by wearing helmets during sporting activities and observing workplace safety measures.

Alcohol Consumption

Excessive alcohol consumption of more than 21 units can increase dementia risk.

Infrequent Social Contact

Social engagement may benefit brain health via brain stimulation. Grassroots volunteering is a good way to make friends and stay socially active.

Mid-Life Obesity

Eat well and exercise often to maintain a healthy weight.

Lower Levels of Educational Attainment

A low level of educational attainment in early life is one of the most significant risk factors for dementia. Everyone can play a part to outreach to seniors with a lower level of education to improve their access to health education and health care services and provide social support to mitigate the risk of dementia.

10

Diabetes

Monitor and manage your blood glucose level especially if you have Type 2 diabetes.

Hearing Impairment

12

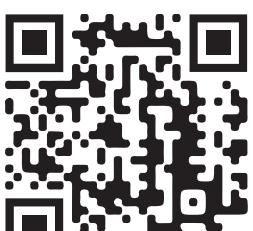

Diminished hearing is a significant risk factor of dementia. Protect your hearing from loud noises by using protective equipment. If you are experiencing hearing problems, do see a health professional to assess your suitability for a hearing aid, to reduce the risk of dementia.

Depression, Loneliness, Social Isolation

11

Seek assistance early if you are facing any mental health issues. Call the National Care Hotline (1800-202-6868) for emotional or psychological support.

Compliments from the Community

It makes our day to know we've made a difference! Thank you for your words of encouragement and affirmation - we will continue to work hard to make Marsiling-Yew Tee a wonderful home for all.

Kudos, Officer!

To: Marsiling, SPO Nicola Yong

Thank you for your reply. This is the first time after staying in this estate for more than 15 years that feedback was ever attended. I would like to thank Ms Nicola for a good job done. I hope Ms Nicola will continue to be a proactive officer and make the estate a cleaner and healthy estate to live in. Thank you Ms Nicola once again for a good job done.

Best regards
Grace

Brush of Excellence

To: Yew Tee, PO Stella Lim

I would like to provide positive feedback on the excellent service provided by property officer, Stella Lim.

Two weeks ago, we noticed the wall next to our main door was painted but the paintwork was not done properly. Feedback to Marsiling - Yew Tee town council CCK office and the counter linked us to Ms. Stella Lim.

Stella immediately followed up with us and arrange for the repainting work to be carried out. She has been consistently following up with us and share the progress update.

The work has been completed last Thursday [Mar 17, 2022] and it has been properly done.

Thank you very much to Ms. Stella and Marsiling-Yew Tee town council.

Thank you for showing your appreciation to Marsiling-Yew Tee Town Council staffers so generously! Visit our social media pages where we will post more letters of commendation, sent in by you! If you have a great story to share about our officers, please send them in to feedback@myttc.org.sg.
